

ABSTRACT

A reconfigurable optoelectronic circuit adapted to alter its internal configuration includes logic circuits, electric connections and optical connections. It comprises a plurality of logic blocks of electronic circuit and an optical circuit interconnecting them and both the internal configuration of each of the logic blocks and the optical interconnections of the logic blocks using the optical circuit are alterable.